Introduction

A human resources assistant at the hospital for which you would like to work has begun to check her email. She's received 100 this afternoon, all with resumes attached. Forty of the resumes are for the same nursing position for which you have applied. She'll also have to collect those in the mail and fax machine—close to 150 in all.

She is the first to review the resumes. Her job is to scan each one in a computerized database. She'll then query the database based on specific key words identified by the nursing supervisor. Those resumes that meet the requirements will be forwarded to the human resources manager for further review. Those who submitted resumes that don't meet the criteria will get a polite rejection letter—or hear nothing at all.

In other hospitals that do not use a database, a staff person will visually scan each resume to see if minimum qualifications are met. On average, he'll spend 10-20 seconds screening each one. In these organizations, your employment future depends on a favorable first impression from an overworked human resources staff member.

Which pile will your resume end up in after a 10-20 second review? Yes? No? Maybe?

These scenarios are not unlikely. If your resume doesn't capture the immediate attention of the person or computer screening it, you may not be interviewed for the position—even if you have the required experience. Fortunately, there are steps you can take to increase the likelihood that your resume will get a second look. The purpose of this guide is to help you create a resume that keeps you in the running. That is, it motivates a potential employer to call you in for an interview.

What Is a Resume?

A marketing tool that sells YOU not a listing of education and jobs

- It must convince potential employers to learn more about you
- They must believe that you have the skills to be a successful nurse
- A winning resume generates a positive message about your experience and doesn't raise questions or confuse the reader

Your resume must describe what you can do. Have you treated critically ill patients? Can you demonstrate that you can work well under increasing pressure? Have you developed new health programs? The hiring manager has to see how your previous accomplishments are relevant to her needs. If she sees a link, chances are you will be called in for an interview.

Preparing to Write Your Resume

- Work up a spreadsheet with all your Educational, Clinical, Professional & Volunteer Experience with Dates and bullets of your responsibilities and skills used
- Plan on taking 2 hours to get a draft done and then let it sit for a few days and edit it
- Let an objective person read over the job to which you are applying and then give you feedback on your resume

Recommended Style: Targeted Reverse Chronological

Although there are many types of resumes, this guide will focus on targeted, reverse chronological resumes as they best communicate an individual's skills and accomplishments. Provide an overview of your background and outlines specific accomplishments and experiences.

Remember, the person reading your resume has a problem. Your job is to demonstrate that you have the requisite skills to meet their needs. A targeted, reverse chronological resume is the best way to achieve this objective.

After you have completed a basic resume, develop resumes that are individually targeted to the positions you are seeking. Be sure your resume reflects back specific job description philosophy & duties. It is far more effective to spend the extra time to do this than to have a resume that is too broad and vague. We recommend that you develop a template and adapt it according to the positions for which you are applying.

Formatting Your Resume

- Avoid using templates – they can be difficult to alter
- Choose a basic readable Font – Calibri or Arial are good choices
- 16 pt max for titles, 10-12 pt for text
- Avoid all caps. Instead you can use a bold font. Consider carefully what you want to stand out
- Keep margins at 1" on all sides
- Include Month, Year for dates and right justify
- Be sure verb tense is accurate and consistent
- Be sure your name is at the top of each page
- One to two pages are an acceptable length for your resume

A resume includes...

Caption:

- Your name, telephone number and personal email address. Re: email address – have it be similar to your name and avoid numbers which are too easily misread (Example first name-last name@gmail.com)
- List your physical address if you are applying nearby, otherwise it can be a deterrent
- Usually centered at the top of the page. Type your name in boldface at 13-14 font size
- Be sure your name is at the top each page

Caption Example

Mary Smith

409 555-1234

Mary-Smith@gmail.com

Summary Statement vs. Objective Statement:

Today's trend is to summarize yourself to be market yourself to a potential employer versus using an objective stating what you want. Referencing the job description may help with this. Brainstorm on adjectives that describe you – high energy, calm, detail oriented, organized, and compassionate, etc.

Summary Example

Compassionate patient centered graduate nurse eager to work with multidisciplinary staff to utilize my interpersonal skills and critical thinking skills to provide safe, quality care, and comfort for patients and their families

Versus an Objective Example

Challenging RN position in pediatric critical care unit where I can grow professionally and help others

Qualifications Summary:

A qualifications summary has become very common. In 3-5 bullets it describes broad skills and highlights how they relate to the position you are seeking. It is a teaser that encourages the reader to learn more about you by reading the rest of your resume. (Recent nursing graduates may choose not to include a qualifications summary. It may appear redundant if your qualification summary repeats the experience included in your education and professional experience sections.)

It should be brief and focused, and incorporate phrases that pique the reader's attention

- Summarize your abilities in 3-5 categories or functional skill sets
- Include only the skills you wish to emphasize for the position job description
- Write as a broad overview. Specific examples that demonstrate your abilities should be outlined in the Professional Experience section of your resume
- Include key words (usually nouns) that can be incorporated in a search

Qualifications Summary Example

- Nursing experience including clinical rotations in episodic care, maternal and newborn, pediatrics, medical/surgical, psychiatric, community health
- Extensive experience with children and adolescents as Child Life inter and Student Athletic Trainer
- Managerial experience including small business ownership specializing in security and customer service

Headings:

Following the qualifications summary, headings define information sections that describe your unique skills and experience. Headings may include: All headings should stand out on the resume and be consistent, using same typeface, boldness or capitalization.

Education and Certifications

Clinical Experience

Professional Experience

Volunteer/Community Experience

Awards and Honor, Professional Organizations, etc

Education and Certifications

- Education should be your first heading if you're a recent grad or will be graduating soon, or if you are changing careers and your education is directly related to the position you are seeking
- Include undergraduate GPA if above 3.2 and graduate GPA if above 3.75

Education and Certifications Example

University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston, Texas

December 2012

Bachelor of Science of Nursing – GPA: 3.7/4.0

Baylor University, Waco, Texas

May 2004

Bachelor of Business Administration

Major: Management Information System; Minor: Spanish

Certifications

NCLEX Exam Date: January 14, 2013

Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS)

National Nurse Emergency Preparedness Initiative (NNEPTI) Certification

Clinical Experience

If you have been in clinicals as part of your education it's very important to have this section. Organize them in one of two ways: by Hospital or by Department (Med-Surg, Pedi, NICU, etc) Beware of only listing your clinical locations since this tells the resume reviewer very little.

Bulleted Statements: Well-written bulleted statements are a critical component of the professional experience section of your resume. They tell the reader what you have accomplished. When writing these statements, remember to:

- Begin with action words (see list at end of Guide) and be consistent with verb tense
- Terms like “responsible for” or “participated in” do not strengthen your resume
- Emphasize skills/experience, type of patients, tasks completed
- Include both nursing skills and customer service skills
- Continually ask yourself, “Is this relevant to the position for which I would like to be hired?”
“Are the skills stated, transferable to a nursing position?”
- Do not use the pronoun I in a bullet – it's inferred
- Keep bulleted statements short and use them rather than complete sentence
- Avoid using periods with bullets

Clinical Experience Example

UTMB School of Nursing, Nursing Student

Galveston, TX, Jan. 2012 – Dec. 2012

- The Methodist Hospital (Neuro Med-Surg, Telemetry)
  - Reinforced education for patients for procedures and upon discharge from the hospital under supervision
  - Alerted nursing staff immediately to changes in patient level of consciousness and orientation. Reoriented confused patients to help reduce their anxiety and confusion
  - Provided Spanish to English translation for patient and doctor during a physical assessment
- Memorial Hermann Main (Labor and Delivery)

- Encouraged new mothers when experiencing difficulty breast-feeding and reinforced teachings from lactation consultants
- Took the lead in ensuring family members were updated and comforted to reduce anxiety when a patient required an emergency procedure
- Texas Children's Hospital (Cardiovascular ICU, Transplant, Adolescent Pulmonary Med-Surg)

Professional Experience

Headlines explain the where and when of your experience in a reverse chronological order typically not going back more than 15 years. Include a headline for each relevant place of employment. Include all experience related to nursing in this section, such as internships, part-time nursing assistantships, research projects. Of course, you may have others. It is acceptable to include experience that is not paid since this section is called Professional Experience and not Work Experience. Although some of your professional experience may not be related to nursing, if it includes transferable skills (customer service, organization, working as part of a team, etc) be sure to include it.

NOTE: The job title need not be first. Choose the information that you would like to emphasize. Whatever you choose is consistent. If you start with a job title, always list the job title first. List dates to the right.

Volunteer and Other Relevant Experience

If appropriate, you may choose to include other information. Consider the following headings: professional memberships, publications/presentations, security clearances, language skills, and volunteer/community experience. Focus on those that support your career goal.

Volunteer Experience Example

- UTMB School of Nursing BACC2 Program Class Representative
  - Represented the BACC2 program at meetings each semester with UTMB School of Nursing administrators.
- St. Vincent's Clinic Volunteer - Galveston, TX
  - Assessed patients from the Gulf Coast community and reported finding to students from UTMB's School of Medicine to assist in diagnoses.

Honors and Awards

Include honors and awards if they are unique, fairly recent, and ideally relevant to your education and career goals.

Roberts Scholarship Fund for Geriatric Nursing Awardee
Jones Community Leadership Scholarship Awardee

Refining Your Resume

Congratulations!! You have just completed the most difficult part of writing a resume. Now, you should plan to edit and refine your draft. It may be helpful to put this draft of your resume down for a day or two. Looking at it with fresh eyes may make editing it easier. This is a terrific time to have your resume critiqued by the SON career consultant. Half-hour resume critiques--which are free of charge to SON students--can be arranged. You can meet in person or, if more convenient, send us a copy of your resume, and we'll be happy to critique it by telephone. Your resume will be reviewed and you'll be given suggestions regarding style, content, and organization. This step may mean the difference between getting a call for an interview and receiving a polite rejection letter.

Tips for Scannable Resumes

- Begin with a summary or qualifications summary containing selected words related to the position you are seeking. Use nouns to highlight your qualifications.
- Avoid use of italics, graphics, and shading. Use horizontal and vertical lines sparingly.
- Avoid fancy serif fonts. Instead use Calibri, Arial or Times New Roman
- Use bold, capitalization and indentations carefully. Use bullets or dashes, not plus signs or asterisks, to emphasize phrases.
- Don't use acronyms unless they are spelled out the first time used.

Other Suggestions

- Don't force your resume onto one page but don't go beyond two. Include your name on the second page.
- Do not include irrelevant information. Employers do not need to know your weight, height, age, or marital status. Besides, it's illegal for an employer to ask these questions.
- Do not include your picture.
- Do not include salary information in your resume.
- Avoid using "the", "a", "an" or other articles throughout your resume.

- Keep most important information along the left margin and closest to the beginning of each section of your resume.
- Use capitalization and bold throughout the resume to highlight important information. Don't overdo it – and be consistent.
- Proofread! Proofread! Proofread! Do not send out your resume if there are any typographical errors. That alone could eliminate you from further review.
- Save your resume as a PDF before emailing or attaching it to an application.

Cover Letter Guide

The cover letter needs to be individualized specifically to the hospital to which you're applying. This letter gives you an opportunity to explain why you are interested in a particular position and the organization. This is your chance to highlight the parts of your background that directly relate to the position for which you are applying. Do your homework beforehand to make sure your cover reflects the mission and values of the organization in addition to the skills required of the specific job. The goal of the cover letter is to differentiate you from other applicants. Show in a narrative form how you can meet their needs and communicate your interest, motivation, and self-confidence for the job.

- Introduction/Why you are applying. Make sure you mention the specific position and your current status. For example, "I am interested in the Clinical I Nursing Position in (state department if listed) Department. I will receive my BSN degree from University of Texas Medical School in May and am eager to be considered for the position. If you are writing a general letter to an organization and not a specific job, you will want to state why you are applying, "I am sending a copy of my resume to Methodist Hospital because I have a commitment to the ICARE values for which Methodist strives. I will complete my BSN degree from... and would like to be considered for a clinical nurse.
- What your Experience/Education Offers. Highlight the key points in your background that sell yourself as the right candidate for the position. You do not want to repeat everything that is in your resume – the cover letter just gives a taste of your accomplishments so the person will want to read your resume. Again, first consider what the employer is looking for. For example, you may want to use a quote that describes your attitude towards patient-centered care and then highlight one or two examples that demonstrate your commitment. If there is something that is not fully explained in your resume, you may want to provide information here.
- Why you are interested in the position. Why do you want to work for this particular employer and do this specific job? Why is your experience a good fit for the job? For example, "My clinical rotation at "ABC" hospital impressed me with the high quality standards you apply. I was able to learn the importance of clear communications with the healthcare team and the importance of clear, thorough documentation. While at UTMB, I developed my communication skills through..... (Include your specific evidence of communication skills here).
- What will happen next? When appropriate, suggest that you will be calling them (you want to keep control as much as possible). If not appropriate, state that you are looking forward to discussing career opportunities and give a contact phone number and email.

Your cover letter is an example of your communication skills, so draft it carefully and have it reviewed by a trusted person. Most importantly, check and make sure that your passion for nursing comes across in your letter.

Note: If you're submitting your resume electronically, add your cover letter to your resume as the first page. Recruiters usually only open one attachment. Be sure to PDF together and name it appropriately, for example Mary Smith Resume for ABC Hospital ICU.

Manager of ICU Unit
ABC Hospital
One Medical Center Dr.
Houston, Texas 77102

Date

Dear Manager:

It is with great interest that I apply for the Clinical I Nurse position at ABC Hospital. ABC's values reflect the reasons I decided to become a nurse. I am graduating in April and plan to sit for the NCLEX in June.

My clinicals showed me the importance of working as part of a team. I was able to build relationships with doctors, nurses, assistants, and other members of the health care team. One of my references, Manager Mary Jones at XYZ Hospital, recognized me for my dedication to my patients and my supportive approach to helping others on the health care team. I took accountability for helping the unit meet the needs of all patients.

In addition to my education and clinical rotations, I worked as youth program coordinator in Houston, TX. I worked with young people from diverse cultural backgrounds. We organized activities and counseled individually regarding substance abuse prevention. This experience showed me how our patients need to be involved in the decisions regarding their health care. I learned to be sensitive to people's emotions and respectful of their culture and boundaries. Most important, it taught me to deal build trust by being honest, showing compassion, and keeping the individual's needs a priority.

I believe that my skills, my dedication to nursing, and my willingness to learn will make me a positive addition to your health care team. I have attached a resume which further outlines my background. You can reach me on my cell phone (409) 555-1234 or email me at mary-smith@gmail.com.
